

SHOSHOLOZA PROGRESSIVE PARTY

MANIFESTO 2026

FOREWORD

South Africa is a great country, with great potential and many opportunities. South Africans are great people with high hopes and ambitions. We have watched you struggle for a better life and we have heard you yearn for a better and secure future. We have listened to your fears, anxieties and frustrations. We have seen you get up early in the morning to chase the South African Dream of a better life. It pains us to see many of you struggling without services like water, electricity, rubbish removals, potholes, dilapidated schools and hospitals. We have seen you struggle to pay those bills; many of you being listed with the credit bureaus for bad debts; many of you failing to find employment and many of you are living in fear and insecurity.

Shhh... Don't despair! We are Shosholozza Progressive Party and with this our manifesto we declare that "Together we can save the South African Dream".

Our Vision: To Make South Africa a Great Country.

Mission: Our reason for existence is to improve the lives of all South Africans and to promote South Africa to become one of the leading, most successful and respected nations in the world.

WE HAVE THE MOST BEAUTIFUL COUNTRY IN THE WORLD! LET US BUILD IT TOGETHER!

Working together in unison without painting our faces black or white, we can reposition our country as the epicentre of industrial growth, technology and development in Africa and the world at large. This we can achieve through cognitive reengineering to promote positive imagery of ourselves. We will inspire our people to overcome notions of inferiority, subservience, and victimology and we will instil confidence, unity, innovation, and leadership. For the world, we will work towards changing the perception of Africa as a hopeless case; a land of divisions, poverty, strife, sorrow and disease to a view that reaffirms that we are a land of hope, inspiration growth and opportunities. This combination of self and international validation will build self confidence in our people to live and invest in our country with pride. Many large corporates make their fortunes here and run away to Europe and America because they lack the pride of being South African and some of them lose these fortunes and return cap in hand to try and rebuild their fortunes. This must change because this is home and we must all embrace South Africa as such without any fears.

The Economy - Economic Balance

Our economy is in distress and continues to deteriorate. Marginal growth has turned to recession with massive job losses. We have also seen a widening gap between the rich and the poor, making South Africa one of the most unequal countries in the world. We are concerned about the level of government debt; the Rand value; the declining reserves; the balance of trade deficit; rising inflation levels and high cost of living; inordinate government expenditure; failure of state owned enterprises; and declining real wages. We are saddened by the ever-growing number of unemployed people and the high levels of indebtedness amongst our people. The South African dream that we fought for is melting before our eyes. It is time to change the way we do things ; the way we vote and the way we think. Think Differently!

We declare and commit that:

- i. Supplier of Choice for Africa
We shall reposition South Africa as the supplier of choice for the African market by emphasising quality over price to beat the cheap and fake products that have flooded the continent in the past two decades.
- ii. Inward Directed Economy
We will refocus the economy towards inward-looking growth by supporting local industry to invest locally and also to grow and expand to the rest of Africa and the world instead of depending solely on direct foreign investment.
- iii. Government Directed Investment in Communities
The government will invest a portion of its income in building factories in communities to stimulate growth and employment. In this way we will become self-sustaining
- iv. Economic Gateway for Africa
We will reposition South Africa as the economic gateway of trade in Africa instead of continuing to export raw materials to the developed world.
- v. Monetary Velocity
Money tends to get stuck in the corridors of power this strangles the economy. We will stimulate economic growth by promoting rapid circulation of money (Monetary Velocity) in the economy through systems of trade; social pay-outs; shortened pay cycles etc.
- vi. Incentives for Small and Medium Enterprises
We will stimulate economic growth through provision of incentives for small; medium and micro enterprises and provide support to agriculture especially food production.
- vii. Redesign the Tax Regime
We shall manage the tax regime in such a way that value added tax, personal income taxation corporate tax are reduced over time. This will be compensated by other more friendly measures of revenue collection that will be more fluid and efficient.

viii. Improve Access to Land

We will speed up access to land resources through legal means as per the constitution and we shall abrogate the Sub-division of Agricultural land Act of 1972 and replace it with legislation that will allow for speedy subdivision of land into workable land parcels to promote access to land. We will also increase the number of agriculture training colleges and encourage young people to go into the agricultural sector.

ix. Increased Public Private Partnerships

We will increase the role of government in the economy through increased public private partnerships, regulation and controls to direct investments to specific areas and sectors to ensure a balanced economy especially in the rural areas and previously disadvantaged areas.

x. Balance the Budget

We will balance the budget and reduce government debt to acceptable levels of the Gross Domestic Product (GDP) and control government expenditure.

xi. Fair Terms of Trade

We will negotiate fair terms of trade with the developed trade partners to reduce the trade imbalance and we shall protect local industry against international competition.

xii. Promote Beneficiation and Industrialisation

We will promote beneficiation and production of finished products for export to the continent and protect local products from imports.

xiii. Abolish Minimum Wage and Promote Employer and Employee Bargaining.

We will promote job creation by abolishing the minimum wage and give labour unions the opportunity to negotiate with employers to reach agreements on sector specific wages. The minimum wage has done a lot of damage to our economy by giving employers the choice of illegal immigrants over South Africans.

xiv. Promote the Arts, Sports, Entertainment and Gaming Industry

Increase budgetary allocations to Arts, Sports, the Movie Industry, Music and Entertainment, Gaming Programming and AI to involve the youth into lucrative economic activities.

xv. Redefine the Southern African Customs Union and Redefine Borders.

Consider the establishment of a lucrative and powerful economic block as the United States of Southern Africa (USSA) to include Botswana, Eswatini, Lesotho and Namibia with the possible expansion to include Zimbabwe, Zambia, Malawi, DRC and Mozambique.

National Health

A healthy nation is a productive nation. We are concerned about the quality of health care; the long queues; the deteriorating facilities and overcrowding. We are also concerned about the high cost of private health care and medical aid. We shall revamp and improve health care by;

- i. Doctor–Patient and Nurse-Patient Ratios
- ii. Increasing the number of health professionals to reduce the doctor/patient ratio and nurse/patient ratio to reasonable proportions. This shall be done by restructuring and streamlining professional training and qualification of doctors; nurses and introducing a new category of doctor nurses.

iii. National Health Card with Point System

Introducing a national health card that will contain points to be utilised per annum. This card will be used in any clinic either private or government. Private clinics may deduct more points for treatment than public hospitals and this will be at the discretion of the user. Once points are exhausted, the patient will be required to top up with own funds. This will force citizens to consider healthier life styles and prevention as a better option to cure. Point allocation will be based on age and health profile. The card will also contain all health information about the individual citizen i.e. age, height, weight; BMI, blood type; blood pressure levels, sugar levels etc. This card will be automated and on visit to a clinic or hospital the patient will swipe the card and a printout will be made with all the relevant details. This will reduce the waiting times and queues. Every citizen will be required to have the health card and to donate blood at least once per annum.

iv. More Hospitals and Clinics

- More hospitals and clinics will be built to reduce congestions. Semi-private health centres run by qualified doctor-nurses will be also promoted especially in communities.
- v. A national campaign on healthy living and eating will be rolled out to maintain a healthy nation.

Education

Education is one of the key pillars of growth and development. Again, we pay tribute to the progress achieved in this sector especially the introduction of fee free education at tertiary level. However, we are concerned about the disparity in private and public education. The cost of private education is much higher when compared to public education. We are also concerned about the quality in some of the public schools. The polarity between the two sectors continues to perpetuate the inequalities of the past whereby private schools are dominated by the rich who get preference for university entrance thus reproducing a skewed class and racial imbalance. Fees are used as a way of discriminating against the poor and predominantly black pupils. This same pattern repeats itself in our higher education institutions where the elite universities make it difficult for students from disadvantaged backgrounds to enter. We are also concerned about the insufficient facilities at higher education where mini ghettos have been created to cramp student accommodation.

We therefore commit ourselves to:

- i. Broaden Access

Streamline our education system so that there is clear and unambiguous articulation between all the levels of our education system i.e. from per-primary to high school and post school education. This will be achieved through opening opportunities for qualified educators to use their homes as learning hubs to broaden access at junior levels and to relieve congestions at schools.

- ii. Review National Curriculum Statement

Review the national curriculum statement to focus on a maximum of 5 key subjects throughout the basic education stream. This would allow for structured teaching and effective learning of not more than 4 hours of classroom teaching per day. Long school hours are wasteful because the human brain has limited concentration spells.

iii. Review Academic and Vocational Streams

Review the academic and vocational streams to ensure quality and to reduce costs. The vocational training sector will be disaggregated to provide relevant and focussed skills instead of lengthy programmes that involve and include irrelevant learning. For example, a plumbing programme should not take three years but three months.

iv. Enforce Blended Education

Enforce blended education to combine both contact and E-learning to ease congestions at all levels.

Safer Communities

South Africa is considered one of the most dangerous countries to live in with crimes such as murder; rape and theft being of key concern. We shall make South Arica a safer country by:

i. Increase Police Visibility and Reduce their Admin Tasks

Increasing police visibility in our streets by releasing them from office administrative duties like certifying certificates and identity documents which has become a key police function. Requirements for certified documents must be scaled down to ease the pressure at police stations. For example, only shortlisted candidates for a position must be required to bring certified copies for interviews instead of everyone applying. Police stations are always jampacked with people wanting to certify IDs and certificates.

ii. Increase police Mobility

Increasing police mobility by putting them back onto motor bikes for quick responses. The current model of bakkies and luxury vehicles is unsustainable and limits rapid responses because police stations have one or two vehicles.

iii. Retraining the army to combat crimes in specific high-risk areas.

iv. Improving crime reporting and management systems such as emergency numbers.

v. Promote and restructure community policing to enhance efficacy.

vi. Improve the justice system to ensure expediency by introducing alternative dispute resolution mechanisms and electronic case management and litigation.

Cleaner Communities

Many local communities are living with piles of uncollected garbage due to incompetence and an overstretched garbage management system. This is causing massive health risks for communities. Our people deserve to live in cleaner communities that are safe and managed efficiently. We shall assist every community to establish a community cooperative that will be given the task to clean, repair and maintain community facilities. This will ensure accountability at ward level and will also ensure job creation within communities. Recycling will also be promoted and collection centres will be set up in all communities to assist communities to generate income.

Housing

“Even birds build their own houses”. Much as we appreciate the role of the state in providing housing to citizens, the fact remains that the backlog is so big that no government can cope. We do not want to make false promises to our compatriots. We believe in reigniting that sense of creativity in our people and inspire them to build homes for themselves where possible. We are not talking about the uncontrollable spiralling of shacks all over the main roadside. We will provide plans and land for people to build proper structures failure of which all structures that are non-compliant will be demolished. Assistance will be provided for people who have met the criteria of indigents. The pressure for housing in our urban areas will continue to grow as rural to urban migration continues to grow due to lack of opportunities in the countryside. We are concerned about the quality of housing provided and the fact that the houses provided by the state continue to enforce the legacy of apartheid where there is little if any integration at all. We are also concerned about the untoward consequences of the housing programme which has contributed to rural-urban migration; double families i.e. one in the rural areas and one in the urban areas; multiple house ownerships (one in the rural areas and one in the urban areas); illegal sale of state provided houses; etc.; We shall correct this by:

- i. Provide a variety of housing options to cater for different needs e.g. family units, single person’s units; rental stock, ownership promotion,
- ii. Provide incentives to decrease rural to urban migration by providing housing incentives in the countryside;
- iii. Provide incentives for private public partnerships in providing housing opportunities.
- iv. Provide security of tenure for owners of private title deed against repossession by financial institutions.

Reasonable Influx Control Without Affecting Freedoms.

Our movement believes that responsible governance requires balancing all constitutional rights in a way that protects the dignity, health, and wellbeing of every citizen, including access to water, sanitation, housing, healthcare, and safe communities. While freedom of movement remains a fundamental right, section 36 of the Constitution allows rights to be limited by law of general application where such limitation is reasonable and justifiable in an open and democratic society, taking into account the nature of the right, the purpose of the limitation, and whether less restrictive means are available. In cities such as Johannesburg, uncontrolled population inflows have placed unsustainable pressure on infrastructure, public services, and the environment, leading to collapsing systems that undermine multiple rights simultaneously. We therefore propose a modern, humane, and transparent system of influx management, grounded in law and subject to judicial oversight, not to exclude citizens, but to align urban growth with infrastructure capacity, accelerate balanced regional development, and ensure that all South Africans can enjoy their constitutional rights in practice and not only in theory, both in cities and in rural communities.

Urban Sustainability, Infrastructure Justice, and Balanced Settlement

South Africa's cities are the engines of economic growth, opportunity, and innovation. However, decades of unplanned urbanisation, uneven development, and weak spatial governance have placed intolerable pressure on metropolitan infrastructure systems. In major cities such as Johannesburg, housing, water, sanitation, electricity, healthcare, transport, and environmental systems are reaching breaking point, undermining the constitutional rights to dignity, health, and basic services for millions of residents. Our movement recognises that freedom of movement and residence is a fundamental constitutional right. At the same time, we affirm that no right exists in isolation. When infrastructure collapses, communities lose access to clean water, functioning clinics, safe housing, and reliable transport. In such conditions, constitutional rights become hollow promises. In accordance with section 36 of the Constitution, which permits reasonable and justifiable limitations in the public interest, we commit to balancing individual mobility with the collective right to sustainable, dignified living conditions.

We will therefore introduce a modern, humane, and transparent system of urban inflow and settlement management, rooted in democratic governance, scientific planning, and social justice. This system will not criminalise movement, discriminate against citizens, or revive the injustices of the past. Instead, it will ensure that population growth in urban areas is aligned with infrastructure capacity, environmental limits, and service delivery realities.

Ward-Based Infrastructure Capacity Management

Our government will establish a Ward-Based Infrastructure Capacity Framework in all municipalities. Each ward will be assessed annually in relation to its ability to sustain population growth, taking into account water supply, sanitation systems, housing stock, school and clinic capacity, electricity networks, waste management, transport access, and environmental resilience.

These assessments will produce a publicly accessible Ward Carrying Capacity Index, enabling communities, planners, and policymakers to understand development limits and investment needs. Wards that exceed sustainable thresholds will receive priority infrastructure upgrades and development support, while temporary settlement and development controls may be introduced where necessary to prevent further deterioration.

Role of Ward Committees

Ward committees will be strengthened and professionalised as local custodians of infrastructure sustainability and social cohesion. In partnership with municipal engineers and planners, ward committees will:

- Monitor service pressure and settlement patterns;
- Participate in capacity assessments and planning processes;
- Maintain community settlement and service registers for planning purposes;
- Facilitate community dialogue on development priorities;
- Support the lawful integration of new residents; and
- Advise municipal councils on infrastructure investment and growth management.
- Enforce municipal bylaws.

These structures will operate transparently and inclusively, ensuring that community voices shape local development decisions.

Municipal Service Registration System

To support effective planning and equitable service delivery, we will introduce a national Municipal Service Registration System. This system will record residency and service usage for administrative purposes, including housing allocation, school placement, healthcare access, and infrastructure planning.

This registration system will not function as a movement permit, will not be enforced by police, and will not be used for criminalisation. Its sole purpose will be to enable evidence-based governance and fair distribution of public resources.

No person will be arrested, detained, or removed solely on the basis of registration status.

Sustainable Urban Growth and Housing Development

We will accelerate the release of serviced land, expand affordable and social housing programmes, and fast-track informal settlement upgrading in partnership with communities. Overcrowding will be addressed through proactive housing development, not through displacement.

Where wards are temporarily over capacity, new large-scale settlement developments may be paused while infrastructure is upgraded and alternative serviced locations are made available. Residents will be supported through relocation incentives, housing assistance, and livelihood programmes, ensuring that no community is abandoned.

Strengthening Secondary Cities and Regional Development

To reduce excessive pressure on major metros, we will invest strategically in secondary cities, district hubs, and growth corridors. These areas will receive priority infrastructure funding, government service hubs, enterprise incentives, and skills development programmes.

By creating real economic opportunities outside metropolitan centres, we will enable citizens to choose where they live based on opportunity and quality of life, rather than desperation.

Mobility Support and Circular Migration

We recognise that mobility remains essential for livelihoods. Our government will establish migrant support centres, employment matching systems, and circular migration programmes that link urban employment with rural development, skills transfer, and investment.

These measures will promote stability, family cohesion, and long-term community development.

Constitutional Safeguards and Oversight

All inflow and settlement management measures will be governed by law, subject to judicial review, and evaluated regularly for fairness, effectiveness, and proportionality. An independent oversight body will monitor implementation and investigate complaints of abuse or discrimination.

Any limitation on rights will comply strictly with section 36 of the Constitution, ensuring that measures are reasonable, necessary, time-bound, and the least restrictive means available.

Our Commitment

We reject both uncontrolled urban collapse and authoritarian social control. Our vision is a South Africa where every community—urban, peri-urban, and rural—offers dignity, opportunity, and safety.

We will build cities that work, towns that thrive, and rural areas that prosper. We will protect freedom of movement while ensuring that freedom is meaningful—supported by water, housing, healthcare, education, and secure livelihoods.

Through balanced development, responsible governance, and constitutional integrity, we will secure a sustainable future for all.

Immigration:

South Africa like the rest of the world is experiencing increasing movement of people coming into the country and some leaving the country seeking better opportunities and life chances.

- i. We shall respect international statutes and agreements as pertains people seeking political asylum.
- ii. Legal immigrants with the correct documentation will be treated with respect and dignity as all other humans leaving in our country. Immigrants that have naturalised will be treated as citizens and with full rights and they are welcome to join and vote for Shosholozza.
- iii. Immigrants who have entered the country illegally will be arrested for breaking the law and will be promptly deported back to their countries of origin.
- iv. Immigrants from the SADC states that are earmarked for integration into the United States of Southern Africa will be given temporary Identity Documents pending the final resolution for the proposed integration.

South Africa and the World

South Africa is a great country and must not be shy to stand shoulder to shoulder with other giant states. South Africa must not be shy to take the lead in Africa as the gateway for development and growth. World economics is such that every region has a major economic hub that helps to stimulate and direct growth. We shall ensure that South Africa retains this position in Africa and builds from the south right up to the north.

We shall put South Africa's interest first before any other affairs of the globe. Our security will come first, our economic interests will be prioritised and our political independence will be defended.

Think Differently!
